STEPS TO WOLVES ATHLETIC EXCELLENCE

Personal Responsibility & Accountability

You are solely responsible for your actions and behaviour. We expect you as a student-athlete and as an adult to demonstrate maturity in your actions. Your behaviour is a reflection of yourself, your team, the Athletics program, GPRC, players who have gone before you and players who will follow.

Positive Attitude

Never settle for anything less than everything you can offer. Learn from errors, do not dwell on them or your teammates' mistakes. Everyone from the coach, manager, athlete and trainer will make mistakes during the season. As long as you improve from them they are not wasted.

Unselfishness

Unselfishness is the key to success. None of us can succeed on our own. Set envy, jealousies and destructive personal rivalry aside. We win together and lose together – no one person wins it or loses it, we are all responsible. Teammates who become abusive to each other are required to resolve the situation positively themselves, with minimal involvement from the coaches.

Respect

Treat teammates, coaches, officials, support staff, and the opposition with respect. Feelings of disrespect, hate, seeking revenge, or "getting even" detracts from our play. Always show officials respect; they have a much tougher job than any of the players or coaches.

Commitment

Commit yourself to being on time, fully dressed, ready to go, and giving your best in every practice and match. If you have to miss practice or a match, contact the coach beforehand. If not possible, seek out the coach to explain – do not wait to be asked.

Responsibility

Accept responsibility for errors, loss of temper, loss of concentration and poise without making excuses and then resolve to focus on improvement.

Accept Coaching and Other Directions

Accept coaching and other directions, including roster assignments, in a positive cooperative manner. If you want to question coaching decisions, arrange to see the coach at the earliest time and place where rational discussion can be carried out (not during practice or in competition).

Leadership

Every player can be a leader in their own way: for example, by doing their part, helping out, being enthusiastic, supporting teammates, never getting "down", etc.

Goals

Set quality play, self-improvement, and task related goals; the outcome will take care of itself.

Consistency

Our goal is to perform consistently to the best of our present ability. Be ready to play to your potential each match.

Drugs & Alcohol

Athletes are to refrain from using any illegal drugs. Athletes are encouraged to avoid alcohol consumption and smoking. Smoking is not permitted at or near practice, at the competitive facilities or during team travel. Alcohol consumption is prohibited 48 hours before competition.

Cooperation

Be cooperative and helpful. Be willing to do your part to share in all duties of the team.

Swearing

Swearing or crude language is not acceptable at any time, as you are a representative of Wolves Athletics at all times.

Injuries

It is your responsibility to report injuries to the coaching staff. Injured athletes are expected to seek medical attention as early as possible and to follow complete medical rehabilitation.

All players, coaches, managers, and others associated with the team will be bound equally by these guidelines. If any individual feels they cannot commit themselves to these guidelines, they should so indicate and leave the team.

Many of these rules and guidelines in this handbook must be enforced upon yourself. Your conscientious cooperation will help the Wolves' Athletic program maintain a standard of quality that we can be proud of.

ACAC ATHLETES' CODE OF ETHICS

Integrity means that student-athletes are expected to be honest, sincere and honorable in relationships with others. Acting on these values is possible when student-athletes possess a high degree of self-awareness and the ability to reflect critically on how perspectives influence interactions with others. It is essential that student-athletes respect the rights of other student-athletes, coaches and the public. In being faithful to the principle of integrity, student-athletes will adhere to the following ethical standards.

Integrity

- Do not make participants more or less worthy than others on the basis of gender, race, place of origin, athletic potential, color, sexual orientation, religion, political beliefs, socio-economic status, marital status, age or any other conditions.
- Be discreet in all conversations about others in sport.
- Do not practice, condone, ignore, facilitate or collaborate with any form of discrimination in sport.
- Respect one another for worth as individuals, and promote the rights of others in sport.
- Act toward other student-athletes and coaches in a manner characterized by courtesy, good faith and respect.

Competence

The principle of competence challenges student-athletes to recognize, act on, and promote the value of sport in themselves and within society in general. - Strive to be fully present, both physically and mentally, in the performances of athletic duties.
- Communicate and cooperate with health practitioners in the diagnosis, treatment and management of your own health related needs.
- Do not use performance enhancing drugs, and support other student-athletes' efforts to be drug free.
- Refrain from the use of alcohol and tobacco in conjunction with athletic events or victory celebrations at the playing site.
- Promote and maintain the highest standards of athletic discipline.

Student-Athlete's Interest

The principle of the student-athlete's interest carries the basis of ethical expectations that the activities of the student-athletes will benefit society in general and participants in particular, and will do no harm. Fundamental to the implementation of this principle is the notion of responsible participation - maximizing benefits and minimizing risks - and is carried out by student-athletes who are well prepared and current in their discipline. Student-athletes must act in their individual, team or institution's best interest. In being faithful to the principle of best interest, student-athletes will adhere to the following ethical standards:

- Deal with differences of opinion constructively on a personal basis and refer more serious disputes to the appropriate authority.
- Avoid abusing relationships with other student-athletes, coaches, officials, and/or administrators.

Respect for the Rules

Respect for the Rules outlines the student-athlete's responsibilities to adhere to the guidelines of sport. Student-athletes must play fair at all times and exhibit respect for their sport. In being faithful to the principle of respect for the rules, student-athletes will adhere to the following ethical standards:

- Participate safely in sport.
- Act on an enthusiastic and genuine appreciation for sport.
- Model the fundamentally positive aspects of sport (e.g. sporting and human excellence, fair play, honest competition and effort, self-discipline, integrity, personal growth and development, respect for the body, challenge, achievement and other positive aspects identified by participation in sport.)
- Avoid engaging in the potentially negative aspects of sport. E.g. winning at all costs, playing to the letter of the rules at the expense of the spirit of the rules, exploring/exploiting unfairly competitors weaknesses.
- Accept both the letter and the spirit of the rules that define and govern the sport.
- Uphold the rules of the sport and the spirit of such rules.

Respect for the Officials

Student-athletes must exhibit respect for the referees' and officials' judgment and decisions. In being faithful to the principle of respect for officials, student-athletes will adhere to the following standards:

- Accept the roles of officials in ensuring competitions are conducted fairly and according to the established rules.
- Refrain from abusive personal attacks on officials.
- Respect the officials in areas of expertise, experience and insights of sport by considering carefully their opinions.
- Respect officials' decisions and maintain dignity in all situations.

Personal Conduct

The principle of personal conduct challenges student-athletes to act in a manner respectful of the dignity for all participants in sport. Fundamental to this principle is the basic assumption that each person has value and is worthy of respect. Student-athletes must expect and present the best of one's self at all times. In being faithful to the principle of personal conduct student-athletes will adhere to the following ethical standards:

- Interact with others in a manner that enables all participants in sport to maintain their dignity.
- Maintain the highest standards of personal conduct and project a favorable image of your sport.
- Treat all participants in sport with respect at all times.
- Do not engage in statements, conversations and/or jokes of a demeaning nature of others in sport.
- Keep confidential any information about student-athletes or others which is considered privileged.
- Be aware of significant pressures in other student-athlete's lives (e.g. school, family & financial pressures) in a manner that fosters positive support.
- Act responsibly at all times.
- Honor all promises and commitments.

Academics

The principle of academics is to promote scholastic achievement. Student-athletes must place academics before athletics. It is the student-athlete's responsibility to strive to a level of excellence which would be respected by the athletic department, institution and community.

- Promote education, knowledge and development in your field of study.
- Prioritize academics ahead of athletics.
- Do not expect privileges based on your athletic involvement which your classmates would not receive.
- Maintain at the very least, the minimum GPA stated by the Athletics department.
